

QUEEN'S BUSINESS REVIEW

SPONSORSHIP PACKAGE

2024/2025

Message from the Editors in Chief

Entering our 12th year as Queen's Business Review (QBR), we reflect on the remarkable journey that has made us Canada's leading business publication.

Our objective is to deconstruct industry knowledge and provide a hands on medium of learning for students at Queen's University in fields of commerce, economics, journalism, and more. We cover various aspects of business, whether it is explaining the utility of the Form 10K, navigating the venture debt market, changes to the capital inclusion rate, or the disruptive nature of generative artificial intelligence. We offer Smith students an unparalleled opportunity to report on real developments impacting our industries today.

With a dedicated team of 41 members, QBR operates without retaining any profit as we prioritize excellence in everything we produce. Through international firm visits, print launches, and documentaries, we also foster a vibrant team culture.

We would be honored to partner with you in sharing your company's success and collaborating on the exciting journey ahead.

Sincerely,

Iris Xie

Behind the Shield.

We have broadened our portfolio to include case competition writing, cross-collaborations with other research branches, podcasts, interviews, and conferences, all aimed at strengthening the thought leadership of Smith.

One of our flagship initiatives is the Weekly Snapshot, a project we take great pride in. It provides students with timely insights on critical business events each week, backed by a dedicated media production team comprising senior editors, junior editors, illustrators, and producers.

■ Print Edition & Launch Event

The leadership of the Queen's Business Review warmly invites your support as a valued sponsor. Your generous investment and support play a crucial role in the success of our project. Without you, none of this would be possible.

We hope to continue to put the ideas of bright young writers in print — our premier print launch saw over 150 print editions ordered including 48 articles.

The release of our print edition will be accompanied by a second annual Print Launch Event in February of 2025 and documentary at the Isabel Bader Centre. It is an annual event of ours that serves to bridge connections with professionals while celebrating the work of our team.

The Opportunity.

The Queen's Business Review (QBR) is thrilled to offer a unique opportunity to support a publication highlighting independent, groundbreaking research at the forefront of technological innovation and financial strategy. Next February, we will host our highly anticipated Print Launch Event, where we will unveil our annual publication—a collection of articles and stories meticulously crafted by our editorial team. This landmark event is more than a celebration of student research and writing; it is a platform for connecting with the bright minds attending one of Canada's most competitive undergraduate business programs at Queen's University.

By sponsoring the Print Launch Event, your company can gain access to unparalleled visibility, reaching an audience of over 200 business students directly reading about your organization. This is an opportunity to amplify your brand, enhance your visibility, and support your role championing journalistic and research development. Explore our different levels of partnership, where depending on your contributions, you may have the exclusive opportunity to send company representatives to our event, speaking directly with an anticipated attendee count of 100 attendees and our internal team about your organization's mission and initiatives.

Your sponsorship would directly support the creation and production of our print publication, the development of a documentary to highlight our journey, and the logistical expenses for our Print Launch event.

We want to emphasize that your support will be recognized throughout QBR's initiatives in the next fiscal year, through branding and other acknowledgments for backing independent student research and thought leadership, ensuring the integrity of the findings remains unbiased and uncompromised.
